

This map illustrates the distribution of Baka and Mbuti pygmy groups within the Ituri Forest. The territories are delineated by solid lines and labeled with names such as BAKA, Mbuti, and others. The map also shows the surrounding geographical context, including rivers and lakes, and a network of roads or trails. The map is oriented with North at the top.

1. Introduction:

Debbie Whelan of Archaic Consulting was approached by Peter Nixon, on behalf of iNkosi Baleni of the Ntlangwini, descendant of Sidoyi, with respect to unraveling the land matters which have resulted in uncertain boundaries, comprising the jurisdiction of the Mabandla Traditional Authority. The aim of this report is to pose a series of key questions which can then be used in proceeding with this matter.

2. Methodology:

Archaic Consulting was provided with two gazette notices, one for the 1906 boundaries, and another for the area re-gazetted in 1970, changing the name of the traditional authority from Lupawini to that of Mabandla. (See Annexures 1 and 2) This was the only information available, and is in contradiction to the information provided by the Department of Traditional Affairs, who have minimized the jurisdiction of Mabandla in their 2000 map, as attached in Annexure III. This led to the source material for the map, being gazette notice 5 of 1967. These various gazetted boundaries have been mapped, and form the data comprising Section 5 of this report. In addition, the information sourced from the Land Registers from the Deeds Office in Pietermaritzburg, forms part of this exercise.

Research chasing up these leads was carried out in the Natal Society Legal Deposit Library (Bessie Head) but was limited in success. Some publications on the area were consulted, such as the work on Donald Strachan, (Rainier; 2002) and the two works on the Umzimkulu traders by Milner Snell (2005, 2006). It must be stated at the outset that the physical borderline position of Umzimkulu has proven difficult in accessing information, due in part to its incorporation into KwaZulu-Natal, as well as its historic situation in the Cape Colony. This means that much information is available elsewhere, particularly archival references in the Cape Archives in Cape Town. Other information, such as that provided by Dr. Bainbridge, giving the Government notice for the Umgano and kwaHoha State Forests (277 of 1904) also forms part of the Cape Colony Gazette Notices, and these have not been found in KwaZulu-Natal.

The summarized information, and the key questions that need to be pursued, are found in the Executive Summary, forming Section 3 of this report.

3. Executive Summary:

The land in the Umzimkulu area, unlike that with the iNgonyama Trust in KwaZulu-Natal, is vested under the ownership of the Department of Land Affairs in Port Shepstone, and the person to speak to in this regard is Mr. Zulu. So we return to the original conundrum. However, it is indicated by officials at the Department of Traditional Affairs (Ngqabutho Bhebhe, Mphathi Sithole and Rudi Hillerman) that the tribal authority issues in the Umzimkulu area are anything but simple. It is also understood that the position and extent of the jurisdiction of the chiefs is one which is fluid, and cannot necessarily be pinned down in finality as these boundaries change depending on the seniority of a chief within the local dynamics. In the light that these officials have information which may be out of date, it is suggested that these officials be kept in the loop and supplied information as found, to assist them in sorting out these issues, which will then hopefully inform the Department of Land Affairs and their disposal of the land.

Returning to the source material for the Department of Land Affairs Tribal Areas map as supplied has revealed that the information used in the compilation of the map used defunct tribal authorities which had been rearranged in subsequent gazette notices, being the one supplied to the author, dated 1970. This means that, for a comprehensive study to be compiled which will eliminate all the glitches and supply an effective land record, the remaining Government Gazettes from 1971 onwards should be checked for any subsequent notices repealing the previous boundaries. In addition, it is noted that the original document dated 1906 should be supplied in full, rather than just the schedule. These documents are lodged in the Cape Archives Repository in Cape Town.

It is also suggested that the land registers for the properties annexed in the 1967 schedule namely those west of the location lands, be scrutinised to assess how Aberfeldy was included in the 1970 gazette, but was absent in the previous one in 1967.

Recommendations:

- Scrutinize the remaining Transkei Gazette notices for subsequent Gazettes, bearing in mind that there are gaps in the collection and to establish information on Middleton.
- Scrutinize the land registers for the area west of the location to establish the position of Aberfeldy.
- Keep in touch with the officials from the Department of Traditional Affairs so that the original map which is relied on heavily can be reworked with more accurate information.
- Possibly establish the original boundaries as in the 1906 and 1904 proclamations, as well as the archival information on Middleton. This will either involve a trip to the archives in Cape Town, or establishing a person to do it on my behalf.

4. Land Registers:

It is understood that Ntsikeni 3 is the area originally gazetted as location land, to which other properties were added in later years. The land registers for those properties under dispute were investigated.

5. Mapping exercise

The original boundaries of the tribal area as noted in Proclamation N1130 dated 3/9/1906 (See Annexure I) of the Cape Colony demarcates an area as described below, embracing Ntsikeni Location no 3 with excerpts of the declared forests KwaHoha and Umgano as proclaimed previously by Notice 277 of 1904. These boundaries were still extant at the time that Van Warmelo compiled his comprehensive 'A Preliminary Survey of the Bantu Tribes of South Africa.' In 1935.

Fig: the area demarcated by Proclamation N1130 of 1906

It is important to note that Van Warmelo, in April 1934, noted that in Locations 1 and 2 (Indawana/ Umkeli) the Taung people of Sotho origin were resident. He describes them as paying respect to Moshesh. (Van Warmelo; 1935:69) He describes that 'As a result of the wars and disturbances attendant upon Shaka's reign, numerous clans fled for safety from Natal, and crossed the Umzimvubu River. Of these, many members remained behind when the bulk of their kin had migrated North again, after peace and prosperity had been restored there. In consequence, there probably is no place where the native population consists of so many small units and different elements as the Umzimkulu district. The make-up of the population of any given area is therefore even more heterogeneous than the following data would indicate, and I am unable to give figures showing, even approximately, the strength of those clans and sections whose number warrant their being named below. To properly clear up the tribal tangle in Umzimkulu district will require more time than I have at my disposal.' (Van Warmelo; 1935: 24) With regard to the Ntlangwini, there were 845 tax payers in Location no 3 in the 1930's. In location 1 and 2, forming Indawana, there were 144 and 163 taxpayers respectively.

Government Notice 5 of 1967, dated 28 April 1967, appointed the Tribal Authorities in the Transkei in accordance with the Transkei Authorities Act no 4 of 1965. This Gazette Notice provided for extended lands, and included the Indawana under Headman Oscar Zala on Indawana 1 and 2 and Brighton no C54¹. The Luphawini², led by Headman LS Sidoyi, occupied the Ntsikeni Location, as well as all the lands to the west, excluding Aberfeldy. This, together with the Tribal Areas demarcated in this legislation, suggests that the information on the Tribal Areas map³, compiled by the Directorate: Public Land Support Services in June 2000, relied heavily on this gazette as referenced.

Fig: the green coloured areas describe the Luphawini Traditional Authority according to the Gazette Notice of 1967.

Government Notice 102, dated 20/11/1970 showed extended boundaries. This appears to be largely a name changing exercise, given the preamble to the notice which says 'Disestablishment of certain Tribal Authorities and establishment of others in their stead: Umzimkulu.' However the discrepancy between the number of tribal authorities in the description and the tribal authorities mentioned, suggests at this stage that this may also have been a rationalization process in which the Luphawini gained land, being Indawana 2, which could previously belonged to another tribal authority, the Taung who paid respect to a Sotho monarch. The description is offered in terms of specific properties, in their entirety except for Glengyle, of which a portion is under jurisdiction.

Also in this proclamation are the farms Sidoi and Brighton, expropriated from Moss in 1950 and included in the Mabandla Traditional Authority, whereas it appears that previously they were part of the Taung as above. Indawana No 1 was issued to Chief Msingapantsi, of the Zwelethu Tribal Authority (previously the Msingapantsi Tribal Authority), who at the same time acquired some 8 other properties or portions thereof. Msingapantsi was based at Gungululu/ Dumakude.

² There was a name change in the following gazette which altered the Tribal Authority title from Luphawini to Mabandla. Archival reference 1/UKL 100 N11/1/3/2 notes the constitution of the Luphawini Authority according to Proclamation no 180 of 1956. Here it is signed by Mbutweni Sidoyi. In November 1958 the Luphawini Community opened up a banking account for Tribal affairs at the Barclays Bank at Ixopo.
